Li'l growlers in 'Good Times'

Two month-old lions cubs from the Oakland Baby Zoo will be one of the 340 entries in the "Let The Good Times Roll" parade Saturday, May 3 in Pleasanton. They will ride in the Zoo's circus cage, in the care of zoo assistant Kathy Jensen, shown here checking her fingers after putting her hand in the cage. The parade starts at 10:30 a.m. from the vicinity of Amador Valley High and will go down Santa Rita and Main to Bernal, and then to the Fairgrounds where groups will disband.

Philcox wants action in Sierra-580 suit

PLEASANTON- At least one city official is tired of "sitting around and doing nothing" while the Sierra Club attempts to block the widening of Interstate 580.

Councilman Bob Philcox said Thursday he is going to talk to City Attorney Ken Scheidig to see if "we have any legal grounds" to get involved in that upcoming court battle.

The Sierra Club filed suit April 15 in United States District Court seeking to block the $110 million project which would widen I-580 through the Dublin Canyon from four to eight lanes.

The Sierra Club suit contends that project is "based on faulty assumptions with regard to desired and expected growth in the Livermore - Amador Valley" which has "the worst air pollution problems of any area in Northern California" and constitutes a violation of the federal and state Environmental Quality Acts.

"I don't know if we have any grounds to intervene in that suit," Philcox said, "but I think we should be able to make ourselves heard."

He added, "This kind of action (the Sierra Club suit) is detrimental to the health and welfare of our citizens and it is so darn crucial, I hate to just sit here and do nothing."

In addition, Philcox said he is considering circulating a petition which would ask Assemblyman Floyd Mori to introduce legislation that would make environmental groups such as the Sierra Club "financially responsible" for delaying construction projects.

"Now," he said, "they come along and file a suit that delays something til the costs go up so much it may kill it and they have no financial responsibility."

No court date has been scheduled for the Sierra Club suit, which lists six defendants, including the U S. Department of Transportation Secretary William Coleman, the California Highway Commission, California Department of Transportation Director Howard Ullrich and Donald Burns, secretary of the California Business and Transportation Agency.

It has been rumored that "cabinet level" negotiations are going on with the Sierra Club, seeking a compromise solution in return for withdrawal of the suit.

Any compromise that would include a reduction in the number of lanes for the 10.3-mile widening project would require a complete re-design of the project, Donald Miller of the California Department of Transportation said. "That would take a couple of years," he added, "and then we would have to stand in line again for money." (Federal funds have been allocated for the eight-lane widening project.)

The state advertised for bids on the project on March 24 and has scheduled the bid opening for May 21, Miller said. Until a preliminary injunction is filed for and granted to stop that process, it will continue on schedule.

Park District strike

Flyers attack Dr. Cogswell

HAYWARD - Valley university students who attend Cal State, Hayward, yesterday were bringing home pink flyers about the three - week - old East Bay Regional Park District strike.

The flyers were attacking Dr. Howard Cogswell, president of the EBRPD board of directors and a political science teacher at Cal State.

"Knock on Dr. Cogswell's door, on the third floor of the South Science Building, and tell him politely, but with the seriousness and urgency demanded by this situation, that you support the EBRPP strikers and that as our public representative he should support the park employes' demand to negotiate in good faith," the one - page flyer urges.

It charges: "He's been allowing public funds to be used to destroy the public employes' union of the East Bay Regional Park District. If he succeeds in allowing R.C. Trudeau, general manager of the EBRPD, and Jim Marshall, industrial relations director for Alameda County, to mastermind the removal of almost one - third of our members from the union, a precedent will be set for the destruction of other public employes unions in the East Bay: unions through which we have achieved a decent wage, health benefits, a grievance procedure to protect us from arbitrary firings, and less discrimination against minority people and women."

Meanwhile, 12 of the demonstrators who occupied the EBRPD board room in Oakland for about an hour Wednesday are free from jail on their promise to appear.

District officials said yesterday no decision had been made yet to file charges against the demonstrators. Cogswell said he had called an executive session of the board for tomorrow morning with the district's counsel Donn Black in Oakland. While Cogswell said he doubted Wednesday's action would have any impact on the board's decision not to participate in negotiations, he refused to speculate whether that decision could change after tomorrow's meeting.

"I would doubt it, but I can't speak for all members," he responded.

Demonstrators, mostly members of the striking 185 - member Local 2928, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, said Wednesday they wanted to wait in the EBRPD headquarters building until General Manager Richard Trudeau would negotiate with them. They have been asking for face - to - face negotiations with the EBRPD chief rather than with a negotiating team. Trudeau has been working at an office outside the EBRPD headquarters building at 11500 Skyline Blvd.

Trudeau told The Times not only Cogswell but at least three other EBRPD directors have been picketed at their place of business since the strike started April 3.

Meanwhile, charges and counter - charges are being traded by the EBRPD, Local 2428, and the Contra Costa County Grand Jury.

A statement from the union charges that Trudeau "misrepresented the Contra Costa Grand Jury in a recent report to the EBRPD board."

The union accused Trudeau of telling the board the Grand Jury supported the district's position in the strike while in fact the jury foreperson, Judy Rooney, had told Art Carter of the Contra Costa Central Labor Council the Grand Jury had not taken a position in the dispute.

Asked whether Carter's charge were true, Mrs. Rooney claimed she had not discussed the Grand Jury's position with Carter at all. "I can't discuss what transpires at a Grand Jury meeting, because I am prohibited by law," she told The Times.

MUSD offers teachers 3 percent pay boost

The Murray Elementary School District's first counterproposal to teacher salary requests har been termed "insulting" by a member of the Certificated Employes' Council.

The district responded to the teacher requests for a cost of living raise — about 12 per cent over the past year — with a 3 per cent offer at a Wednesday night negotiation session that has left most teachers cold.

Included in Counterproposal No 1 were four other items:

- Step and column wage increases that average out to 4.5 per cent per teacher;
- Maintenance of total fringe benefits;
- A change in dental insurance that would save teachers $36 a year;
- Deletion of the paid prescription plan that would save teachers $54 a year.

Since the first item is mandated by law, its presence in the package is no surprise and lowering the fringe benefits would require action by the board of trustees, so the teachers were not impressed with those two parts.

The district feels the paid prescription is double coverage since Kaiser and Blue Cross both have similar plans but a CEC spokesperson countered that some teachers don't have Kaiser or Blue Cross and also that the paid prescription plan allows teachers to use local pharmacies.

The change in the dental service would see the replacement of the California Dental Service program with a Traveller's Insurance program.

Wednesday night's meeting did produce a signed agreement on one new policy — the transfer and assignment policy. The district agreed to post vacancies at all schools so teachers could apply for openings and also guaranteed a teacher a written explanation if his or her request for transfer is denied.

Also, if a teacher is involuntarily transferred, he or she is now guaranteed a face to face meeting with the administrators involved and a good faith effort to avoid the transfer if the teacher is upset.

A verbal agreement was also reached on a slight alteration in the procedure for applying for sabbatical leave and a settlement on benefits for retired teachers seems near.

The next negotiation session between the CEC and the district is set for May 7, only 13 days before the deadline set by the Murray Educators' Association (which will soon change its name to the Murray Teachers' Association).

If agreement is not reached on such issues as compensation and the calendar by that date, a mass meeting of teachers will be held to determine the next course of action.

Plan A likely solution for school boundaries

PLEASANTON - Parents in the Willow West area have asked the Pleasanton Elementary School District board to consider amending an attendance boundaries option to keep students in grades 6-8 from been moved from Harvest Park School.

But barring any further concentrated efforts by parent groups, Option "A", as presented to a gathering of some 30 parents Wednesday night, will likely be the solution to the problem of school attendance boundaries in the Pleasanton district.

Superintendent Bruce Newlin told the gathering at Harvest Park that "A" is essentially Option 1B, the solution which had been supported in petition form by some 350 homeowners in the Del Prado area.

Newlin said "it (A) addresses itself best to the program, though one hangup is the relocatables."

Under the provisions of "A," as worked up by Dr. David Carlisle, district director of research and development, it will be necessary to move six relocatables (or portable buildings) at an approximate cost to the district of $1,500 each.

Two relocatables would be moved from Pleasanton Elementary to Valley View School, two from Harvest Park to Fairlands, and one each from Harvest Park to Alisal and Walnut Grove. The latter serves as a teachers' work area.

The other weakness of this option, as pinpointed by Carlisle, would find approximately 110 fourth and-or fifth graders, who walk to school, being transferred to Alisal for one year. Carlisle said there could be some objections from the parents of these children.

An overriding strength of this solution, however, would be in finally making Harvest Park and Pleasanton true intermediate schools. At present, Harvest Park has grades 5-8 and Pleasanton grades K-3 and 7-8. As defined by education leaders, an intermediate school is one composed of grades 6-8.

Proposed service area zones show Alisal as taking in students from Amador-Jensen, Del Prado plus 110 fifth graders from Pleasanton Valley.

Fairlands would serve Heritage Valley, Willow West, Las Positas, Pleasanton Meadows, Camp Parks and Komandorski.

Harvest Park would take sixth graders from Pleasanton Valley and Del Prado, and 7-8 graders from PV, Pleasanton Meadows, Las Positas, Willow West, Del Prado east of Valley. Pleasanton Meadows and Willow West would be phased out over a three-year period, as Option A now reads.

Walnut Grove would serve Pleasanton Valley, less the 110 fourth and-or fifth graders transferred to Alisal for one year.

The board asked that princhpals of district schools mee with parents in their areas to seek further input. A third and probably final special meeting on attendance boundaries will be held in May with probable adoption of a course of action at the June board meeting.

Eight bids received

Parks contract awards due

PLEASANTON - The city council is expected to award construction contracts for two long-awaited park projects at its Monday night meeting.

Eight bids were received for the Cultual Arts Center and staff is recommending acceptance of the $101,482 bid submitted by Chalet Construction of Hayward. That bid is $1,482 more than the engineer's $100,000 estimate.

The 15 bids received for the second phase of the Sports Park ranged from $89,412.52 to $136,946. The engineer's estimate for the project, which will include irrigation and turfing of 15 acres and construction of a 70-car parking lot, was $112,500.

Staff is recommending the low bid, submitted by R.E.G., Inc. of Hayward be accepted.

If council accepts that contract, construction would tentatively begin May 12 and be completed Aug. 10.

City Manager Bill Edgar will also present a status report on the sewer plant expansion program. At present, the State Water Resources Control Board has determined it will fund an expansion to 7.3 million gallons a day capacity (which, in terms of the number of connections, is in fact an expansion to only 6.5 mgd).

In addition, the state has said it would not be opposed to a larger expansion if the local jurisdictions are willing to fund it on their own.

In a letter to the Environmental Protection Agency, the state water board has also indicated it would impose a grant condition that will require compliance with an air quality maintenance plan.

The state is now waiting for the EPA to decide whether it will require a separate federal Environmental Impact Statement on the sewer expansion project.

Staff is also recommending council deny BART and AC Transit's request to add two additional feeder bus stops on Valley Avenue.

The staff report does, however, recommend a modification of the present bus route so that buses coming from Livermore would travel down First Street to a stop at the intersection of Neal Street. The buses would then turn right on Neal, right on Main and continue out Santa Rita.

That modification would provide a more convenient stop for senior citizens living in Pleasanton Gardens and Kottinger Place. The closest stop now is at the intersection of Santa Rita and Ray Street.

Staff is recommending the additional stops at Valley and Greenwood and Valley and Blackbird or Hopyard not be established because they do not believe the additional patronage would warrant the approximately $1,000 cost to the city.

As a result of the meeting held Monday with Amador Estates and Jensen Tract residents who are concerned about the access to and location of Pleasanton Garbage Service's transfer station, the council will also consider keeping the north end of Kolln Street closed.

As part of the development of Heritage Valley to the north of those tracts and the improvement of Valley Avenue, the city had proposed opening up Kolln on to Valley Avenue. The residents, however, had expressed concern that opening up that intersection would provide an alternate route for citizens traveling to the transfer station and would encourage them to travel through their tracts.

Other items on Monday's agenda include consideration of Richard Burge's application to construct a second story on a commercial building in the Valley Plaza Shopping Center, consideration of two septic tanks for DeVor Nurseries, and a discussion of AB 625, the Bay Area Planning Agency bill proposed by Assemblyman John Knox.

The council meeting begins at 8 p.m. Monday in the Pleasanton Justice Court and will be preceded by a presentation from the Bicentennial Committee at 7:55 p.m.

Valley BART sessions scheduled next week

The public will have an opportunity to react to proposed rail lines and bus routes planned through valley points by BART during two hearings set for next week.

Dublin's Shannon Center will host the Tuesday night hearing, and Livermore's Granada High School multi purpose room will handle the Wednesday gathering. Both hearings start at 8 p.m.

The program is part of the Bay Area Rapid Transit Extension Plan for the Amador - Livermore valley. One such proposal for extending rail service into the valley calls for an outlay of $370 million. The question remains however, how to finance that venture.

The location of four valley stations must still be resolved and "their impact on local zoning and land use determined," the Livermore Pleasanton Extension Board notes. The length of that rail service, possibility of service to the planned "New Town" at Los Positas and the question of whether any rail system should be provided to this valley all will be considered.

"The views of valley residents on these and other issues will have an important impact on future decisions about public transportation," the extension board states. Citizen input into that decision is considered vital.

The public hearings are being arranged by BART director Robert S. Allen of Livermore and in conjunction with the Congress of Valley Agencies.

Design reviewed

Designs for Fire Station No. 1, which also will house the administrative offices of the Fire Department, will be reviewed by city council Monday night.

Street session set May 6

Construction intended to update and improve streets in Dublin, Livermore and Pleasanton, and fund up to 83 per cent of total costs will be considered at a public hearing before the Alameda County Board of Supervisors on May 6.

Under the "County of Alameda Three-Year Program for Federal-Aid Urban Projects" program, $567,960 has been budgeted for Livermore, $275,000 for Pleasanton, and $205,000 allocated for Dublin for fiscal years 1973 through 1976.

Livermore has a total three-year allocation of $567,960, yet submitted proposals for $5,162,000 in possible construction. All six projects were accepted for FAUP-funding by the board of supervisors, yet only 11 per cent of these can be completed with existing federal funds, not including the supplemental city or county money.

This apparent overkill was intentional, to insure enough construction was approved so all money allocated for Livermore would be used, since excess monies are returned to a general fund for dispersal throughout Alameda County at a later date.

Livermore projects already approved include:

- The widening of East Avenue to four full-size lanes (now four narrow lanes) from Nielsen Lane to Greenwich Road with traffic signals at the corner of Vesco and East Ave.;
- Total reconstruction of L Street from 5th Street to College Ave.;
- Extension of Concannon Blvd. from Arroyo Road to Tesla Road;
- Widening and improving of East Stanley Blvd. from Murdell Lane to Isabel Ave. (currently in progress);
- Widening of Arroyo Road Bridge from two to four lanes;
- Construction of a parking lot for users of the BART-bus feeder service on East Stanley Blvd.

Priority will be given to those projects for which plans have been drawn up or those closest to being started. These include the reconstruction of L street, extension of Concannon Blvd., and widening and improving of East Stanley Blvd.

Pleasanton has three proposed construction projects for its $275,000, including:

- The installation of a signal light at the corner of First Street and Neal Street;
- Construction of intersection and signalization of Valley Avenue a Santa Rita Road;
- The widening of Kottinger Avnenue between First Street and 150 feet east of the east side of Second Street.

Total costs of the above projects is estimated at $300,000, with $249,000 of this provided by FAUP. Therefore, an estimated $26,000 will be returned to the county coffer as unused aid.

Dublin is an unincorporated area, and construction proposals are forwarded by county engineers. No specific projects have been formally announced, but planners are leaning toward construction of a frontage road adjacent to San Ramon Valley Blvd. between Silvergate Drive and Dublin Blvd. with their $205,000 share of federal money.

No renaming century house

PLEASANTON — The city's 100-year-old Century House will NOT be renamed "Bi-Century Park w/House".

But should city council approve a recommendation by park and recreation commissioners passed at Wednesday night's meeting, the three-acre, Santa Rita Road site will be dedicated as "Century House and Bi-Centenial Park in honor of our nation's 200th anniversary."

The motion, by commissioner Henry Gomez, was spured by Bi-Centenial Committeeman and fellow Park and Recreation Commissioner Ken Mercer at the behest of the city's Bi-Centenial Committee.

Proposals that the address be changed to either "1976" or "1776" were rejected by Park and Recreation Superintendent Bob Caporusso "because the 1700 block is down the street by Safeway," and "the even numbers are across the street."

Objections to Mercer's proposal were voiced by Gomez and commissioner Jerry Wilfley, Gomez reminding commissioners the grounds already were named "formally," and Wilfley claiming he was afraid the commission was "getting in the habit of re-doing things we've already done."

Gomez pointed to the research done prior to the grounds' naming, adding he thought "it's going to be rather confusing" to have the building with one name and the grounds with another.

Mercer won the evening, however, by pointing out the commission's research was not in vain since only the park would de re-named.

Support was given when Caporusso pointed to the "Acquatic Center" as a part of "Amador Valley Park."

Furthermore, Mercer argued, the Bi-Centennial Committee wished the distinction be made clear and the park given one name, the house another.

In a letter to Mayor Robert Pritchard, Mandeville explaind that "pressing personal business" prevents him from devoting adequate time to his office.

TV champs as WBA fades

A noble experiment that met with utter failure wound down on an upbeat Wednesday night in San Jose.

The Tri-Valley Warriors, Pleasanton's first-year entry in the teetering Western Basketball Association, won the league championship with a 108-102 victory over the San Jose Winchesters.

And Tri-Valley general manager Ernie Lazzereschi was guardedly optimistic that his team may return next year.

"It was an interesting season, but we'll get together somehow and try to do it again," Lazzereschi sighed yesterday from his office at the Blue Cross Insurance Corp. in Oakland "We'll know more after the NBA season is over."

The financially shell-shocked WBA owners feel they can present another season of minor league basketball in the Bay Area, if the NBA will adopt their league as a farm outlet. When NBA bosses gather in San Francisco for a June meeting, the Western League will be on the agenda.

If they reject the WBA's offer of adoption, the league may return as a semi-pro operation. Ostensibly the WBA was to offer professional basketball this season, but as the crowds dwindled to nothing, so did the money for the players weekly stipend.

That didn't bother the Warriors Wednesday, who overcame a 13-point deficit with six minutes left in the championship game to cinch the WBA title.

Tri-Valley had lost the three-game title series opener in Pleasanton by five points last week. The Warriors squared the ledger Friday in Santa Clara, and then out-scored San Jose by 10 points in the final quarter of the final game to wrap up the title.

The last six minutes of the season was preceded by a time out in which Warrior coach Don Griffin lambasted his team for its lackadaisical play.

Inspired by the play of Johnny Burks and Larry Woodford, Tri-Valley made Griffin eat his words at the finish Burks blocked three consecutive San Jose shots down the stretch and pumped in 13 points. Woodford followed with nine in the closing minutes.

As important as their offensive work, was the defense of Girard Chatman, the Warrior center. He held the Winchesters' high scoring David Payne to just nine points.

Burks and Duane Readboth scored 22 points for the Warriors. Chatman had 17, Larry Gray, 14, and Dennis Dickens, 12

San Jose's Bob Johnson pumped in 28 points Frank Mixon followed with 25, and Eric Saulny, 20.

Granada heavy pick in EBAL

Granada High's domination of the EBAL swim championship is a foregone conclusion this weekend. The action begins at Dublin High School pool today at 12:30 with the diving competition. The swimming begins at 9 a.m. Saturday in Dublin.

Granada should walk off with most of the first place medals based on its lopsided victories over every opponent in the dual meet season.

The question for coach Gus DeGara and his swimmers is how far can they go beyond this The Matadors are looking at the EBAL championships as a warmup for their real goal, a high finish in the North Coast Section. DeGara, in his first year at Granada after coaching powers at Serra-High, figures his team can place in the top 10 at the NCS finals. That is what the Matadors have been girding for ever since the middle of the season.

His swimmers match up well time-wise against other Bay Area competition, DeGara says. If they peak at the right time, the Matadors could stun some traditional swim powers.

Key to Granada's chances after this weekend is the Mats' freestyle relay team of Steve Cutting, Chris Hoenig, Dave Johansen and John Rizzo. The combination has covered 400-yards in 3:29.9 this season, and is tuning up for a shot at the NCS championship.

Hoenig is definitely the heart of the team, and a threat to win any number of events tomorrow, including the 100 through 500 freestyle, the individual medley and the butterfly.

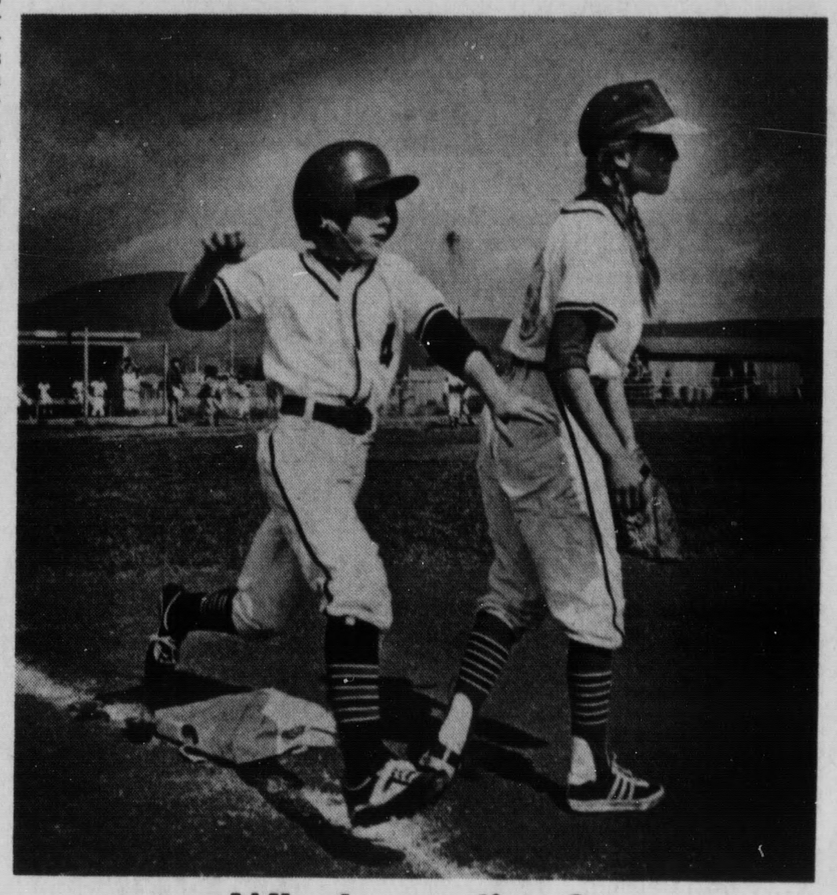
Though the emphasis on the EBAL gathering is qualifying swimmers for NCS, there may be some good battles for first place Saturday.

One of the best could be in the breast stroke if Dublin's Victor Hinojosa meets Dave Eckard of Granada. The Matador has a best of 1:07.3 for the season, while Hinojosa posted a 1:08

Freestyler Mark Steinhauff is a strong bet for a publin place finish as well.

Amador's Jeff Gaeckie will challenge Rizzo, whose best is 22.8, in the 50 free, while the Dons' Steve Pratuch (1:05.5), goes after Johansen, (1:02 0) in the back stroke.

Quite a few varsity swimmers will be dropped down the froshsoph level this weekend, in hopes of advancing in the NCS meets.



Who's on first?

Miss Kerry Uecker of Dublin Valley Little League. She and Ray Hollcraft and hundreds of youngsters opened the baseball season last week in the Valley. From the sideways glance of Hollcraft, it's not quite the same old game. For a closer look, see pages four and five in The Times.

Spikers in Brevik tonight

Five EBAL schools will be in the 13 team field this evening for the 10th Howard Brevik Relays at Mt. Diablo High School.

Field events get underway at 5:30, with running events at 6.

Foothill High, Amador Valley, Livermore Granada and Dublin will be in the top field of East Bay track teams.

Favorites for the Relays championship include Antioch High, which placed well at the Stapleton Relays, Irvington, five time winner of the Amador Invitational, and Alameda High.

Antioch's Rich Jones could hook up in a tough high jump battle with Amador's Andy Finn. Jones has cleared 6.6, and Finn, 6-4.

The only non-relay events will be the 100, mile and 330 low hurdles. The field of sprinters includes Kelly Longstaff, Rich Sessions and Mike Croteau, all with 10.0 times in the 100.

Besides the team championship, awards will be presented to the sprint, field and distance point winning schools.

Cowboys eye 'new' season

The pennant chase passes the halfway point in EBAL baseball this afternoon with Livermore High seeking to make it a whole new season.

The Cowboys, 3-2 after defeating league leader Monte Vista Tuesday, face homestanding Dublin at 3:30. At the same time, Monte Vista, 3-, plays San Ramon.

Livermore, trailing in the standings by a half game, could move in front with a victory over Dublin, coupled with a Monte Vista loss

It will be a difficult task for the Cowboys, however, against Dublin's strong right hander, John Prieto. The Gael senior won his first EBAL start this season by a shutout, and worked 18 innings to no decision against Monte Vista a week ago.

He will face Livermore's John Janzen, a left hander who came out on the short end of a a 4-3 count against Granada last Friday.

Dublin is just one game out of first place, and could move into a first place tie with Monte Vista. and Granada should the Mustangs lose, and the Gaels top the Cowboys.

Granada, 3-2 after three straight victories, is idle until Tuesday.

Moody power

Ed Moody drove his stock hydro to a pair of third place finishes, and Chuck Petty and Mark Pouard each earned a second place in the Oakwood Lake Power Boat Championships near Manteca last weekend.

Moody placed third in the C Stock Hydro class, and in the D Stock class.

Petty, racing in the Service E Hydro division wound up second, as did Pouard in his A Stock Hydro.

LSC sign-ups

The Livermore Soccer Club will hold final player signups this weekend at Carnegie Hall on Fourth St.

Saturday registration hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, from noon to 4.

Youngsters ages six to 17 are eligible. They must bring a birth certificate copy to the signup.

LSC officials are urging players to sign up now, to determine the number of coaches needed for the upcoming season. The players who fail to register, will miss tryout sessions neccessary for placement in the Al Caffodio Soccer League.

Tension cramps jittery Jim's style

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The first time I realized that even a hero could be scared out of his socks was when, as a kid, I visited the gym where Rocky Marciano was in training for a defense of his heavyweight boxing title.

He was hitting a bag off in a corner when suddenly we heard from the other end of the gym a burst of gunfire. Marciano, then the roughest man in all the world, actually leaped in the air from fear.

Fortunately, it was nothing more than a surprise visit by the Cisco Kid and his cap guns.

Before most of the important pro basketball games of his career, Bill Russell, the single most dominating player in team sports in our time, used to vomit.

Johnny Sain, a fine major league pitcher in his day, told me that when he was a rookie he asked a star veteran pitcher when you get over the "nervous urinations" before a starting assignment. The veteran said, "Never." Sain found that out to be true.

Dixie Walker, a standout hitter in the majors, said there were times in the clutch that his back leg shook so much at the plate that he was embarrassed about everyone seeing it.

Different people respond in different ways under pressure, but all of them, regardless of their outward pose, are nervous brothers under the skin.

It most recently struck me with Jimmy Connors.

Connors has given the appearance of an arrogant rooster. In fact, some reporters call him the Muhammad Ali of tennis.

But after his sensationally presented match with Rod Laver at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, I walked out of the tennis arena with Connors and his small retinue. He had beaten the still great, if aging, Laver in an exciting, nationally televised four sets.

During the press conference he had been sipping a soft—drink from a can when suddenly he groaned and his hand shook. "Cramp," he moaned. Quickly, someone applied a wet rag and his hand eased.

Walking out of the tennis arena, a towel wrapped around his shoulders, he began to rub his legs every few steps. "Crampin' up," he said to the handful of people around him.

Near the door, he yelled, "I can't walk," and fell as if shot. People gasped. Connors writhed on the cold floor. Someone tossed a peacoat over him.

Someone else got a chair, and Jimmy Connors was propped up. Harry Hopman, the grand old man of Australian tennis, came by and he took charge. He began to knowingly massage Connors' legs.

"What happened?" someone asked.

"A draft, I think," someone replied.

"No," someone else said, "tension cramps."

Hopman hurriedly tossed off Connors' sneakers, and rubbed Connors' toes. He then kneaded Connors' legs and said,"You proved yourself a great champion."

"Thank you, sir" said the supposedly brash Connors, "I was lucky."

LITTLE LEAGU

Valley's irresistable force

Another Little League season rolled around amidst drizzle and pewter-gray skies last Saturday, but no combination of elements could serve to dampen the spirit or booming success of kids' baseball.

If you're one of those who says "The Grand Old Game is dead," look around at the youngsters playing in Dublin, Livermore and Pleasanton. Look at the new parks their parents build, the new leagues created to accommodate the glut of ball players, and the crowds that gather every weekend of the Spring and Summer.

Baseball, especially in the little leagues, is climbing right off the graph in popularity. Inflation, depression, stagflation — none of it can stem the growth patterns. You just line up one more candy sale, another benefit dance, then go out and buy the bats and balls and organize one more team to the already overflowing leagues.

Everybody wants in on the action. The girls can play now, and their mothers can manage. The boys groused about it all Winter, but when it came time to polish up the cleats and oil the gloves, they forgot their complaints and gave a worry to timing the fast ball.

The parents went out and hustled up another army of sponsors, promising the patronage of all loyal little league families. Merchants, realizing the scope of that market, rushed to have their names emblazoned on the back of baseball shirts. Even Harlan Gelderman, who wants to pioneer his own town in Livermore, but is finding folks who don't want him, agreed to let the kids carry his banner.

And it doesn't stop with real estate moguls.

Young Richard Boyd of the Livermore American Little League has influenced Congressman Pete Stark to attend that league's opening day ceremonies this Saturday. Stark is responding to Boyd's request for an American Flag that once flew over the White House. It will be raised on the American League's new fields at Robert Livermore Park.

That complex is part of the expansion program the little league's carry on every year. The Dublin leagues added new fields at their Kodak complex. The Pleasanton leagues refirbished their Hopyard Road plant.

And in Livermore, the Americans and Nationals got together to launch a senior league program. The Dubliners pioneered it in The Valley, and Pleasanton folks have taken up the idea in the past two seasons. Now it has reached every corner of the region.

The Granada League did some pioneering during the Winter when it announced that Brenda Dry would manage a farm league team, and be assisted by her husband.

Women's Lib was not a factor in her decision to manage. The league needed an adult to take the team. She wanted to help. And another barrier was broken down.

Karma Reazin blazed a trail in Pleasanton when she became the first girl to tryout for a team there. She proved a point by fielding flawlessly.

When Little League Baseball first announced its open door policy for females their were shock waves across the country. But now with another season in full gear, who cares? The preliminaries of scheduling and sponsoring, and publicity and drafting are all cast aside. Everybody is playing baseball, and too busy to care who's on the other team. — Mike Zampa

Galant gives up umpire's solitude

Rob Galant's title could be director of self-abuse.

The Dublin High School senior has moved off the field, and into the front office of little league baseball, where the animosities flare up behind closed doors.

Galant, 18, is vice president in charge of major league baseball for the Dublin Little League this year. He moves into the administration after serving last season as an umpire.

By this progression, you get the feeling he enjoys being the target of name callers.

At 6-2, 217, he's big enough to take it, says Bob's mother Carol, long-time scorekeeper for the league. "Besides, it will be good for him."

Galant was an All-EBAL football player for the champion Dublin High team this past season, and serves under Dublin Little League president Paul Silvas, formerly the president of Pop Warner Football in Dublin.

He is the youngest of the top officers in all the region's little leagues.

Livermore National Little League is unique, boasting the only woman president, Jan Hammecke. She is back for a second season as the league's director.

Dick Boyd, a G.E. Vallecitos employe, returns as president of Livermore American Little League.

Back in Dublin, Mills College administrator Victor Hampton begins another campaign as head of the Dublin Valley league, and Dick Bota returns to the Pleasanton American league.

Beginning his first season with the Pleasanton National league is Bill Washington.

Serving his first season as president of the Granada Little League is Mike Johnson.

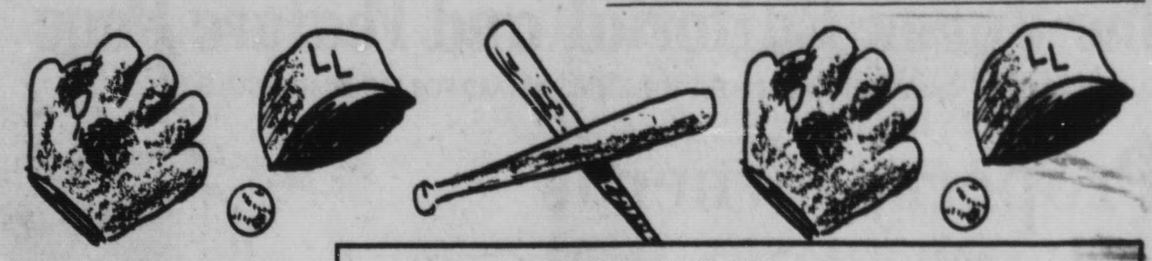
AGUE REPORT



MIKE ZAMPA
Sports Editor

Little league causes cavities?

Two surface deductions are readily discernable to residents of these valleys. Their neighbors are both cavity prone and adept at dancing.

Such Holmesian conclusions are based on elementary facts. Inflation is gripping the nation, and little league baseball captivates the folks in Dublin, Livermore and Pleasanton.

The economic spiral makes it more expensive to put on the kids' baseball programs each year. That, coupled with the growth in little league, puts a mighty strain on the bank account.

To offset the rising financial demand, little leaguers turn to fund raising The sales pitch can become as important as the change up. If they want to play, someone must pay.

And so annually, there are candy sales and benefit dances, bringing us around to the original hypothesis.

It is fund raising time throughout little league baseball, so the folks are buying the Almond Rocca and dancing to the Skyliners again.

Livermore American Little League will hold a benefit dance Saturday, from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. at St. Charles Hall, 1315 Lomitas Avenue.

Cost is $5 per couple for dancing and a midnight buffet.

For ticket information, call 447-1636, or 443-4627, or buy them at the door.

Pleasanton American Little League is in the midst of its benefit drawing ticket sale, with prize winners to be selected June 7.

First prize in the benefit drawing is a Microwave Oven.

Property owner is a diminishing value

While we all take a breather from that great debate over "How big should this community be?", it might be time to start asking ourselves, "Who really controls the city we already have?"

The traditional belief that noted "a man's home is his castle" — with the further assumption that taxes from all those castles made local government possible — has gone the way of the five cent candy bar. The State of California has issued a report which shows that less than one - fourth of the revenue for California cities comes from property taxes. That same evidence traces more than half of all income for local purposes as flowing from "outside sources" . . state and federal grants, in lieu taxes, revenue sharing etc.

That continues a trend whereby local government is becoming more and more reliant on sources other than the home town property owner for revenue. It follows that these same local agencies will become more sensitive to the power of Uncle Sam and Daddy Sacto. and less concerned with the input of the local taxpaying citizenry when it comes time to set the budget, agree to new wage scales or make that next big purchase. (There is the further concern that Uncle Sugar's current generosity will override the local board's own good horse sense in matters of major expenditures. There is ample evidence of this inverse logic throughout the valley.)

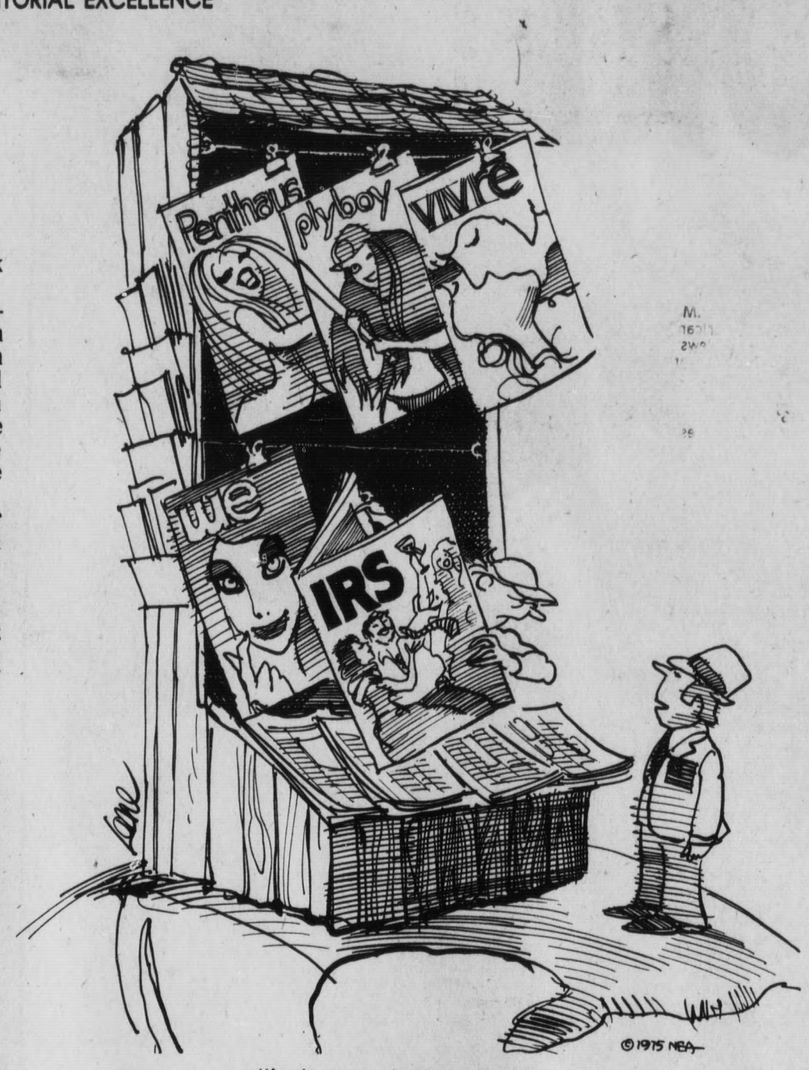
When the city council had to look to local property taxes for close to half of all municipal revenue, with sales and inventory taxes as other major contributors, the council was keenly aware of the local populace as something more than a Monday night pest. It was the same story for school boards and even county boards of supervisors, way back when.

Now the county board has become little more than a funnel through which state and federal funds — along with appropriate orders — flow with annual consistency. There is every indication that community government might be headed for the same role . . . if indeed we are to be allowed to maintain "home town government" at all.

In the meantime the local demand for services — parks and playgrounds and safety services in keeping with the new suburban mood — continues to grow. City councils look more and more to Sacramento and Washington for that added revenue, often hiring their own lobbyist or spending large amounts of the council's or the city staff's time in those hallowed halls of moola.

All of this has of course been true for the "local" school board for some years now, leaving that body as little more than a fiscal agent for state government. It is apparent from some of the expenditures made and the people hired that the community's actual need is lost in the greater desire to "respond to the state standard" whenever possible.

Just where all that leaves "home rule" is anyone's guess. But if we believe inthat other grand old saying — "He who holds the purse strings holds the crown" — then we can assume that the peoples' power over local government might soon equal the control we hold over that crowd in Washington. Which makes us wonder if there wasn't a certain blessedness in the Jeffersonian principle which gave to "the smallest increment of society" the authority, and the responsibility, to govern ourselves as best we might.



"Is it tax deductible?"

round the town

Who among you has never felt the passion of public service pound against one's breast? . . never known the palms to sweat and the lip to quivver as you await the opportunity to jump to your feet with that noblest of cries — "I'LL DO IT!"

The complulsion to volunteer is rooted in every man, woman, and even a few children. Psychologists credit it to "our need to share, to participate, to feel wanted." My personal head shrink suggests that it goes back to those days of World War II military service . . . "Which one of you fine young men wants to be the first to dive over this eight - foot wall?" It was only that other affliction — the tendency to stammer — that kept me from being first in line, every time.

Volunteering is a particular way of American life. Something to do with our passion for penance. Others suggest it's because we can't mind our own business . . . winding up in distant wars, messing around with other folks' oil. That sort of thing. But we digress.

There was a time in my "public career" that I belonged to no less than five service clubs or civic groups. Was president of two of them, in one year. I truly believed the world could not function without me. Just thinking about my being suddenly removed from the scene, leaving the valley bereft of all this talent, gave me the midnight shakes.

It gave others the shakes too, for different reasons. "Where are you going this time?", she would demand. "If it's Tuesday night it must be Lions . . . you know that," I answered. If it was Tuesday noon it had to be chamber, or Thursday for the United Crusade; weekends belonged to "really active community projects" . . . helping sod the park, build the sign, prepare the barbecue. Once I spent an entire year helping to draw up a new charter for Alameda County. The results of our scholarly endeavor were received by the board of supervisors "with deep appreciation." Then they promptly filed the whole blessed report. Never heard a word about it since.

Some prefer the "quickie community venture." In and out. No meetings, no elections. Just show up, cook the beans, serve the beer, clean up the mess, then go home and forget it ever happened. They are, I suspect, the sharper of our species. I even tried that once.

It was some sort of community feed at the County Fairgrounds. Forget why. But it had to be done. I volunteered to handle the barbecue.

Pete Christesen volunteered to cook the beans. A huge pot of them, suspended over that barbecue pit Pete's own special recipe. Promised to go well with Gunther Ripcke's fresh corn and those Moller steaks. Five minutes before feed time, with the long line of hungry paid - up guests already gathered, Pete gave the bean pot "one last check." Inexplicably, the whole blessed thing toppled over, into the barbecue pit. The smell was awful. My anguish was something else.

"What will we do?" I pleaded. "Don't worry, I'll think of something," Pete said, and promptly disappeared. Leaving me to face that hungry mob, I suspected. But no, he went instead to the residence of he who managed the local Hagstrom's Food Store. Compelled that gentleman to open every can of beans on hand in the market. Dumped the works into buckets, and rushed same back to the fairgrounds, just in the nick.

The response was great. "Where did you get those delicious beans," demanded Joe Rose, who, after a 40 - minute delay at the bar was in no shape to be a bean connoisseur "It's Pete's secret recipe," I responded, smilingly. To this day, it is a secret shared by just the two of us volunteers.

* * *

There was that other time. Something to do with boosting the Boys Club. We had planned a festive weekend of street dances and food, and related beverages. Les Fields was the Big Honcho. I was his able assistant. We worked all day gathering up tables, pots, even making sure the street had been cleaned of any unwanted animal leavings. It was, I remember, the hottest day of the year. The work left us with a terrible thirst. "Let's have a cold beer," Les announced toward high noon. He would make the same announcement several more times during that long afternoon. Perhaps once too often.

Came time for the evening's festivity and I found myself tied to the front step of my batchelor pad. (Those were my REALly swinging days!) Unable to rise, or perhaps just unwilling. The combination of hot sun and cold beer had taken its toll, of even that rugged veteran of so many volunteer wars.

"You must get to the street dance with these prizes," my Good Self was telling my Stewed Self. "Can't move a muscle," SS replied to GS. "You HAVE to," said GS, "because it's in the true spirit of Volunteerism. So of course I did. Or at least long enough to leave the prizes with one startled Joaquin Perry. Then back to my pad, to rest, perhaps to die, and in dieing to ponder the wages of the public servant, who never knows when to say, "NO!"

FOCUS/Good Neighborhoods

An anti-crime plan

In these times of high prices, high unemployment and generally unstable patterns of living, we are increasingly being confronted with acts of vandalism and theft that range from petty to felonious.

While residents of this valley enjoy a safe and secure lifestyle, generally free of any fear of any incident occurring while out on the streets, there continue to be instances of deviant behavior that are at least annoying if not unlawful.

We are talking of those acts that might best be described as "neighborhood incidents." Not the bank robberies, gang fights or embezzlements of the urban areas.

In this regard, we recently received literature from the public relations director of the "Good Neighborhood Program," an agency based in Oakland that purports to promote "protection, friendship, cooperation block-by-block across the nation"

Ray C. Opper, the PR man, lives in Pleasanton and has sent along letters, also, commending the group and offering encouragement from former governor Ronald Reagan, Evelle Younger, formerly district attorney for Los Angeles County and now State Attorney General, the Chief of Police for Alameda and clippings from a Berkeley daily and Congressman Pete Stark's newsletter.

The latter item best describes what the "Good Neighborhood Program" is. We'll quote from it but say right now that the program, in its present form, seems to be best suited for urban areas such as Oakland, San Francisco, Berkeley and Richmond.

"The Good Neighborhood Program is a crime-prevention project used with great success in Oakland and other East Bay cities. The program, conceived by William V. Thomas of Oakland, brings neighbors together in a cooperative effort to prevent burglaries and other misdeeds in their blocks. "The neighbors elect block wardens and work out a system of vigilance and communication. When one is away from home, the others know about it and keep their eyes open for strangers. "It's as simple as that, and it works. In Mr. Thomas' neighborhood, there had been 56 burglaries the month before the program was implemented. The number dropped to 15 the first month and only two the second month the GNP was operative. During the next 21 months only seven burglaries occurred. Today, the program involves more than 18,000 families of all colors and creeds, and the idea has caught on in other communities. "Cooperation between residents and police is emphasized. The GNP is not a vigilante program. The front window is the eye to the neighborhood, the telephone is the mouth and ear. "Police are generally enthusiastic about the program. Praising Thomas' efforts, Alameda Chief Richard Young said, 'No police department can function efficiently without the complete help and support of the citizens it serves.' "The GNP bolsters police efforts to control crime. It also encourages communications between neighbors, something we've gotten away from."

So there it is.

A laudable program but one best suited for urban areas. I really don't believe we in the valley have gotten to the point where we have to elect neighborhood block wardens to keep an eye on the homes of neighbors while they're away. Nor do I believe we here have to look at the world in such a suspect fashion. This may be the height of naivety but I feel very positive about this valley community of ours.

But the Good Neighborhood Program certainly deserves the exposure which we've just given it.

Letters to the Editor

Walt Hecox's taxes

Editor, The Times:

I am enclosing a column which appears in todays' Valley Times. Mr. Hecox is a real whiner. If he pays taxes in the forty percent bracket, he and his wife have an income of about $32,000, after deductions. His adjusted gross income must be over $35,000. This does not put his family in the middle class. I have done lots of income tax returns in the Valley and have had only one family which reported an income as high as $37,000. Therefore, Mr. Hecox and his wife are definately in the upper brackets. Last Fall's census showed that only 7% of the families in Livermore have an income over $25,000.

Married people have always had the advantage in income tax situations. Not everyone can get married, — No matter how much he would like to. I don't think you should tolerate this kind of whining over personal problems by your managing editor. I also think you might mention to him that he certainly overworks the expressions "sweet Post Toasties," "wheat squeezings," and "juniper juice."

Mr. Hecox does have some skill as a writer, but I am tired of reading about "Skeeter" and their personal "problems."

Ruth L. Hitchcock
Livermore

Ruth Hitchcock may have prepared a lot of tax forms, but I wouldn't want her handling mine. Our adjusted gross income was between $21 and 22,000 on the federal return and something over $23,000 on the California form. That calls for a 32% payment to the US and 8% to the state and you can bet your Sweet Post Toasties if we paid any less than 40% we'd wind up in stony lonesome.

Training for pharmacists

Editor, The Times:

As the Second Vice President of the Alameda County Pharmaceutical Association I would like to ask you to print a correction on the article which appeared on page 9 of the Sunday, April 13 Valley Times/Pleasanton Times which had the headline "Chabot College encouraging pharmacy through programs."

In the very first paragraph it states, "Chabot College is fulfilling a community need and training students to become pharmacists at the same time under its new Hospital Pharmacy Technician program begun in January." I would like to point out to you that before a pharmacist is even eligible to take the state board examination for licensure that he must have completed 124 semester hours of credit which constitutes 3200 clock hours or four years of resident attendance in a college or school of pharmacy.

There are only three schools of pharmacy in the state of California, those being at University of California in San Francisco, University of Pacific and University of Southern California.

I am glad to see some form of formal training for pharmacy technicians but the class at Chabot College far from prepares them to accept the role of the pharmacist on the health team.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

Press agents are, I think, a breed apart from the rest of the world. I was about to say civilized world but some of the lads and lassies who make their living in the publicity business are something less than civilized.

The feeble minded, fat headed flack with whom I chatted (or should I say shouted) late Wednesday evening was one of the barbarians.

No sooner did I identify myself than he started to chew me out. How did I dare to call him the night before a show and ask for complimentary tickets? Where were my manners? What was the matter with the people in the suburban press anyway?

Matter of fact I hadn't asked for a damn thing at that point. What I wanted were tickets to the show he was flacking for and didn't care how I got them. If the tariff was $15 a head, that was what I was willing to pay.

The press agent had done a stinking job anyway by my standards. The reason I had called him the night before the show was because I had not known about the event previously. Which would indicate he was a pretty poor flack.

Fortunately there are other publicity men around (and by any other name or euphemism that is what they are).

Some nice fellows go out and beat the drums for worthwhile events and are welcome in any newspaper office and, I presume, in the studios and broadcasting booths of the other media.

Stan Lerch is one of them. He is doing the press agent job for the Shrine Circus which opens tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the Oakland Auditorium.

There are all kinds of circuses around the world but the most worthy has to be the one the Polack Brothers produce each year for Aahmes Temple of the Shrine.

The show is held to help support the Shriners hospital for crippled children, sort of an extension of the East—West Shrine game where strong legs run so the weak can walk.

The event is even more generous than that. Some 5,000 kids, all of them handicapped physically, mentally or socially will gather in the auditorium tomorrow at 10 a.m. and see the show free.

At from $2 to $3 a head that alone adds up to a pretty generous donation.

It has been years since I have seen a Shrine circus, but at $3 bucks I would say it has to be a bargain.

Almost four years ago I took a lassie and her two kids to the circus and thought I was paying the national debt when I reached the ticket booth. Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey seats do not go for two bucks a pop.

The show was worth the money. A circus is almost as much fun as a rodeo and probably more enjoyable to a four year old kid.

We will be busy this weekend. Sunday the circus. Saturday a half day session with the Contra Costa Press Club.

The Press Club holds a newspaper institute at Diablo college this weekend. This old man is slated to serve in a panel discussion starting at 1 p.m.

"It is scheduled to last an hour but will probably be longer," the lass in charge of the program told me.

Topic of the panel discussion will be job opportunities in the world of journalism, a subject on which I have mixed emotion.

Thirty-eight summers have passed since I walked into the editorial cubbyhole of the Gridley Evening Globe and settled down under a leaky stovepipe.

I am neither rich or famous nor have my opportunities for amassing a fortune been as broad as they might have been in another occupation.

We are given a status and prominence in our respective communities out of all proportion to our incomes.

Last Sunday I sat before a television set and watched four newsmen, and four of the better paid, interview six industrialists who probably could have written a check for the lifetime salaries of the quartet of reporters and not have put a dent in their bank accounts yet the ten men sat and chatted as equals.

Don't take this as a complaint. I am satisfied with my status, content, as a matter of fact, only when my writings are being published and read in one form or another.

Once, in a moment of madness, I moved out of the newspaper business and into industry. I took a job as catalogue, printing and stationary manager of the largest hardware wholesale house in the west.

With three titles and a two year contract, things looked rosy.

Within a month I was counting days until the end of the contract and the time came I could leave the job into which I was locked for two years.

Then back to the publications and the newspapers and I was home again, a little poorer but with a lesson well learned.

There are, I believe, lads and lassies on this planet who were born to write for a living, who need the tonic of the typewriter and the published, printed word as badly as a diabetic needs insulin.

We will never be rich, but we will be happy working at the trade we love. There are plenty of job opportunities for those of us who are willing to trade a little wealth and comfort for doing the job to which we were born.

I think I will tell that to the lads and lassies Saturday. Then to the circus on Sunday. And back to work.

Where a man can be insulted by a freaked out flack. And treated well and with respect by a gentleman in the publicity business who is so nice a fellow looks for space to advertise his product.

For Friday, April 25, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This could be an expensive day if you get involved in a business area you're unfamiliar with. Avoid complicated deals.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Plan first as to how you'll handle important matters today. Your on-the-spot decisions are not reliable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't try to palm-off tasks you should be doing. You'll only have to do them later — with a possible penalty.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't jump in too hastily on a business tip you may learn of from an influential contact. It isn't that good.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you try to rule the roost with too heavy a hand today, the family may take some steps to dethrone you. Walk softly. Forego the big stick.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be extra-careful when traveling today. Keep a sharp eye on those who share the road, whether you're walking or driving.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In your eagerness to satisfy a whim, you're likely to pay far more for something than you would if you were in a more practical mood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may have to set your desires aside the next few days in order to meet demands of others. Just don't be a complete patsy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be wary: Don't unthinkingly say or do something today that will cause a serious breach between you and a close friend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't try to run the show within your clique today. Be democratic. Let everyone have a voice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A goal you have in mind today will not be in accord with an associate's, yet you must do what's best for you. He'll understand in the long run.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Little things you would normally overlook in others tend to irritate you today. Be conscious of this. Avoid nit-picking.

Your Birthday

April 25, 1975

You'll form some unusual alliances this year. They'll take you off on new paths. It will work out well if your associates know where you're going, even if you don't.

Director Allen says 'no'

BART board to name chief today

By JUSTIN ROBERTS

BART directors today are scheduled to formally announce the appointment of Frank C. Herringer, 32, as general manager.

Herringer has been administrator of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) in Washington, D.C. since February, 1973, when he was named to that post by former President Richard M. Nixon.

The announcement scheduled for 9 a.m. today was planned in a hastily ordered press conference scheduled late Thursday morning after directors voted 6 to 3 to hire Herringer for the post.

Opposing the hiring of Herringer were BART directors Nello Bianco of Richmond, John Glenn of Fremont and Robert Allen of Livermore. All three based their opposition to the appointment on the salary level offered Herringer to induce him to take the job as head of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District, The Timer has learned.

The Times yesterday revealed that BART directors had offered Herringer $67,500 to take the position, but for unexplained reasons in voting Thursday to lure him to the position, upped the pay another $1,000 and sealed the deal by voting the UMTA chief a yearly pay scale of $68,500. His current salary is about $45,000.

Herringer, formerly associated with Cresap, McCormick and Pagett, a prominent auditing firm, has had no actual experience in railroad operations prior to his appointment to UMTA by Nixon. UMTA's function has chiefly been the doling out of federal funds to various transit projects around the United States.

The executive session, called after board members held their regular meeting at BART headquarters in Oakland, came as a surprise to several directors.

Refusing to be quoted directly, some of them called it a "power play," since they had been told Wednesday that the session had been canceled and that the committee had nothing to report to require another meeting Thursday.

Glenn, upon being quizzed by The Times, commented, "I didn't even know we were going to have a vote this morning. I received a notice telling me the originally scheduled executive session had been canceled."

Glenn added, "My first knowledge came during the regular board meeting when Dick Clark made the announcement there would be a personnel session."

Clark rushed directors through BART's regular agenda Thursday morning, requiring only 45 minutes for business that would normally have required three to four hours of discussion by directors and the BART staff.

Once the last item on the regular agenda was cleared, Clark announced, "We will now enter into executive session in the fifth floor conference room, No. 508, to consider personnel matters. This meeting will be adjourned immediately upon termination of the executive session and we will not convene again in public session today."

Clark refused further comment on the board's known intention to hire Herringer as did director Elmer Cooper, head of the special general manager selection committee. Cooper refused to offer any more than "no comment" when asked by reporters what district plans were to appoint a new general manager to replace B.R.Stokes, who resigned under fire last May.

One director later admitted he felt "... Cooper had pulled a fast one by canceling the meeting and then scheduling it again."

Voting on Herringer required two ballots with the first resulting in a 7-2 vote, with only Glenn and Bianco opposing the plan. Allen voted for Herringer on the first ballot — reportedly believing he could oppose the salary of $68,500 when another motion came before the directors.

However, in a second ballot, Allen realizing he had to buy the "whole package" with one vote, sided with Glenn and Bianco whose opposition was reportedly based on the high salary offered Herringer.

Herringer was not one of the more than 175 applicants actively seeking the job.

The Times reported several weeks ago that directors had run out of acceptable candidates from among the list of applicants and had resorted to soliciting potential managers. Herringer was among those sought out by Cooper's committee. No top official in transit was willing to take the BART post, The Times reported. BART's offer to Herringer is some $23,500 more than his current pay to take over the helm of the financially and technically troubled Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

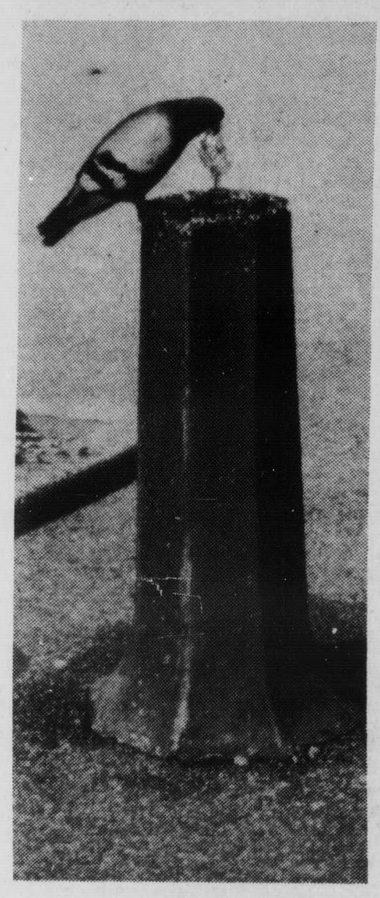
Be prepared . . .



The Boy Scouts' motto "Be prepared" paid off for 58 of them wise enough to keep their cameras handy. Six scouts were awarded scholarships and another 52 received merit certificates for their entries in the Eastman-Kodak sponsored Scout Photo Scholarship Awards. The annual contest was open to scouts 11 through 15 years of age who had earned photography merit badges. Capturing the action of a Junior Olympics' tug-of-war (above) netted Alan Miller of Orrville, Ohio, a merit certificate. Perched atop a water fountain at Jackson Square in New Orleans (left), a pigeon was having "one for the road" as 15-year-old Gary Bernstein of Des Plains, Ill., happened by. Not the best ski form (right), but it did win Richard Rees, 14, of Provo, Utah, a $250 scholarship, thanks to the unusual angle.

Overseas relief theme for missionary talk

LIVERMORE - UMCOR (United Methodist Committee for Overseas Relief), the agency that responds to need in the wake of disaster such as tornadoes, floods, drought, famine will be the subject of the Rev. Vincent A. Ruther ford when he speaks at the Asbury United Methodist Church Mission Festival at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 26.

Mr. Rutherford and his wife, Ferne, will on hand throughout the day to meet people and share information and experiences related to their work as missionaries in Afghanistan and West Pakistan, where they served for over twenty years. Because of the present political situation in Afghanistan, they are not able to return there at the present time.

From May to August, 1974, Mr. Rutherford worked in New York City with the United Methodist Committee on Relief where he was Secretary for Program. His major assignment was related to the drought and famine relief in West Africa.

Beginning in September, 1974, the Rutherfords' furlough was extended and Mr. Rutherford is a full-time mission interpreter of the work of the Board of Global Ministries.

In Afghanistan, Rutherford was an administrator with the Medical Assistance Program, Inc. and Mrs. Rutherford was secretary in the rural medical project. Rutherford spent a good deal of his time on the road with transportation and building work. Prior to that appointment, and beginning in 1955, the Rutherfords were stationed in West Pakistan and were involved in church development and administration.

Born in Sacramento, Rutherford attended Yuba County Junior College, the College of the Pacific, Asbury College and Asbury Theological Seminary. Prior to entering missionary service, he was pastor of churches in Winchester, Kentucky and Miltonvale, Kansas. Mrs. Rutherford was born in Santa Cruz and also attend Asbury College.

The Rutherfords are the parents of five children.

In all, the new Vintage Hills will offer the potential homebuyer five distinctive 3, 4 and 5 bedroom floor plans overlooking the beautiful Amador Valley. The models, called the Arcadian, the Newporter, the San Simeon, the Californian and the Monterey, are available in a total of 20 attractive exterior designs. Elevations include ranch style, two - story and tri - level, all constructed on spacious lots.

"I've developed many single - family communities in the last 30 years," H.C. Elliott said, "but certainly Vintage Hills in Pleasanton has to rank as one of the most successful of them all.

"I can't think of a better location for a Bay Area family than Pleasanton," Elliott continued. "And I honestly feel that Vintage Hills offers a solid investment in well - built, carefully designed homes."

Elliott added that in nearly 30 years in the California construction business he has marketed more than 8,000 homes. "I think that I know what a family wants and needs in a contemporary home," he said. "And I believe we have those wants and needs answered in the five models we offer in Vintage Hills."

The new Vintage Hills homes include such attractive standard features as shake roofs, fireplaces in all models, double - car garages, sunken rooms and kitchens featuring the latest in modern appliances. Two of the models, the Monterey and the San Simeon, feature the spacious "curvilinear" kitchen popularized in earlier Elliott designs.

According to the builder, prices at Vintage Hills are scaled from $45,950 to a top of $58,950. FHA/VA (Tandem Plan), as well as conventional financing are available.

To reach the Vintage Hills model complex from the North, take Interstate 680 to Bernal Avenue exit at Pleasanton. Turn left on Bernal to Main Street. Jog left on Main, the jog right as Bernal continues to First Street. Turn left on First, then right on Vineyard to Tawny Drive. From the South, take 680 to the Sunol Boulevard off ramp which exits on First Street. Continue into Pleasanton on First. Turn right on Vineyard to Tawny Drive.

Honda Civic CVCC 5-Speed Hatchback

42 MPG

CVCC and Civic are Honda trademarks. © 1975 American Honda Motor Co., Inc.

The 1975 Honda Civic CVCC. You can take it to the gas station or the supermarket and not be disappointed.
In EPA lab tests for highway driving, the 5-speed Civic got 42 miles per gallon. The best mileage performance for any car sold in the U.S.
Yet, we didn't sacrifice roominess for economy. The Civic seats four adults. It also holds a lot of groceries, or luggage, or sporting gear, or you-name-it. (And that's with the rear seat up. Fold it down and there's even more carrying space.)
The secret behind this kind of performance is in the way the Civic was designed. We gave it a shorter profile so its compact size would be ideal for today's life-styles.
And finally, we gave it an engine that doesn't need a catalytic converter, that runs on regular, low-lead or no-lead gas: The Honda CVCC Advanced Stratified Charge Engine.
All in all, it's one car that no matter where you go, you won't mind saying those three little words: "Fill 'er up."
